2020: The year we've long awaited!

Dear Member,

At last, the long-awaited year is upon us: 2020! It has such a nice ring to it. Vision 2020. 20/20 eyesight. The beautiful round numbers of 2020 seem to call to us with a promise of a new era! Will this be the year that we finally get our flying cars and personal jetpacks?

Whether that is the case or not, one thing for sure is that we are called to advance as a society. One of the key tenets of Vision 2020 is to have a caring society, for example. It doesn't take great technology to bring that about. A great heart and attitude will do.

Be that as it may, technology is always something that can be a great aid to our development as humanity. And in this historic issue of Club Times, we look at The Age of Digital Entrepreneurship as our cover story and the coming of 5G technology as well. Looked at together, the advent of advanced technologies opens up huge new possibilities for the upcoming generation – and the existing ones as well. How do Facebook and Instagram and whatever's around the corner provide a platform for a livelihood that was unimaginable just one generation ago? Let's find out.

At the same time, let's discover the historical attractiveness of Kedah, with our Top 5 article this quarter highlighting five must-see locations in that great northern state of our country. And with the Olympics coming around the corner, we take a look at another historical masterpiece – karate, which will be making its debut as an Olympic sport this year.

Finally, chill out and enjoy a read about boba tea. Is it as bad – or as good – as people make it out to be? Malaysia is home to dozens of boba tea brands, and we're proud of it, so let's find out about it. On the matter of F&B and R&R, be sure to check out the Members' Privileges that we have planned for your and your family's enjoyment, and as always – I'll see you down at the club!

Yours faithfully,

Khor Doh Waa

The Age of Digital Entrepreneurship

Digital technologies are helping a generation of online entrepreneurs build their businesses online, including in Malaysia. The digital environment has naturally lent itself to entrepreneurial activity; as the start-up capital is low or not needed. This has allowed online entrepreneurs to sell to a global audience and supplement their careers. Facebook and Instagram have provided platforms for entrepreneurs to establish and discover new opportunities. Malaysians are using such platforms to create a portfolio, and selling products as well. New start-ups are coming up around the world because of the vast amount of knowledge that has been shared on various platforms like Facebook and Instagram.

About Facebook: What was its initial objective?

When Facebook was built in 2004, it was to bring the social experience of college to the internet. Its now-famous founder Mark Zuckerberg wanted to build an environment that helps college students connect with one another. But that changed – Facebook today has become an entrepreneurial platform through its ability to develop social infrastructure that gives people the power to build a global community that works for all of us.

What is Facebook today?

Zuckerberg has been asked the question of what Facebook is, over and over since 2006. The answer keeps on changing along the way. Facebook has grown from a site where college students would accept each other as friends, to one of the biggest and most influential companies on the globe. Billions of users and the power to connect and affect economic and political landscapes is what Facebook is all about today. Facebook allows people to search for and draw attention to their own issues.

How does it help to build successful entrepreneurs, and who are they?

Facebook helps build successful entrepreneurs through a well-planned Facebook marketing strategy which helps them reach their target audience. As an entrepreneur, work on what you know best and use Facebook as a platform to improve your reach. This adds more value to the business by nurturing customers, improve awareness and provide more resources for the market audience. Successful entrepreneurs have a specific vision. They pinpoint the exact problem that they're trying to solve. Start a company if you actually know what it is that you want to build.

One question that keeps arising as Facebook carries on, is how long the platform can sustain itself in the market due to demographics and interests changing – and with new platforms coming up. There is concern about the aging of the demographic inhabiting Facebook. Younger users are shifting towards other social media platforms. Even though many of them are still interacting with Facebook's Instagram; more of them are going to competitors like Twitter. Twitter has a robust and reliable technology infrastructure like Facebook thus closing in its competitive edge. Such competitors attract smart and experienced engineers, but Facebook invents new tools and technologies. So, Facebook still has more to go in the market despite demographics and interests changing.

On Instagram: its target audience and their habits

Instagram was launched in October 2010. When Facebook bought Instagram in 2012, it had just 30 million users. Today, Instagram has more than a billion users. Users between the age of 18 to 34 years make up the majority of Instagram users. A deep understanding of Instagram's target audience is essential for a successful Instagram marketing strategy. Know what intrigues and motivates the audience, to produce the right content to engage them. Habits of Instagram users include liking a lot of photos, commenting, and leaving feedback.

What are the prospects of Instagram becoming the most successful platform for entrepreneurship in the next five to ten years? Since the launch of Instagram nine years ago, it is fast becoming one of the leading social media platforms. Where the platform really shines is in the level of user engagement. Engagement with brands on Instagram is ten times higher than on Facebook, 84 times higher than on Twitter, and 54 times higher than on Pinterest. Instagram will be one of the most successful platforms in five to ten years to come, if these trends continue. Instagram accumulates about four billion likes per day. So, using Instagram puts your business in front of the right audience. What sets the prospects of Instagram high is the ability for businesses to show their products without overtly advertising them.

Can Instagram replace Facebook and Twitter in the future?

Ever since the purchase of Instagram by Facebook, it has been kept relatively independent. Now Instagram is entering an all-new era where the child bests the parent. Instagram's future is arguably brighter. While Facebook and Twitter usage declines, Instagram flourishes. Instagram is made for the phone. With 80% of social content being consumed in a mobile environment, it's a structural significance for Instagram. According to Infinite Dial study from Edison, usage of Facebook among young Americans aged 12 to 34 declined sharply between 2017 and 2018. Direct commerce on Twitter and Facebook does not come out naturally. But on Instagram, commerce is woven so tightly into the experience, it feels like a very natural extension of the platform.

What will entrepreneurship likely look like on Instagram in the future?

Being successful on Instagram is likely to change in the future – simply using clever hashtags and posting regularly won't be enough to cut it. To get more followers and likes in the future, getting to know about the right tools and trends will be key to building a robust Instagram presence.

The good news is, the bar for entry is low enough that anyone with interest and determination can make a credible effort at starting up their own business on Instagram and others.

The Digital Transformation:

5G For You & Me

5G is big in the technology news lately and promises to transform people's lives. All the big telecom companies are talking about 5G and how it will change everyday life for millions of people, but what is 5G and why is it so important?

What is 5G?

5G is the next generation of wireless technology. There have been four previous generations, from 1G (analogue cellular) all the way up to 4G, which most countries have. The current wireless technology, 4G and 4G LTE is faster and more responsive than previous iterations of wireless, allowing for better web functionality for smartphones. 5G promises lower latency (lag time) and faster throughput as well as a more reliable network. The changes brought about by 5G will support more devices than ever before, allowing more smart devices and autonomous vehicles without a glitch. People who are used to using AI and smart devices in their lives will find it even easier to use them. Smart devices and AI will become more accessible to people who haven't been able to purchase them before.

One downside of 5G is that 4G devices are incompatible with that network, so companies will have to support both networks for a time until most people have switched over to 5G. Companies will have to support 4G as well, while 5G is being introduced.

How is 5G an Improvement Over 4G LTE?

Besides being faster and capable of handling more devices, the benefits of 5G will improve lives markedly. 5G has none of the capacity limitations that 4G has, improving connectivity to homes and businesses like never before. The infrastructure will also benefit from 5G as now power plants, water and sewage plants, and shipping services will be able to use IoT (Internet of Things) technology to track equipment, run automated testing and report to controllers, and even provide commands to smart devices to control them without the lag time 4G had. Thus, even those people who do not use smart devices will benefit from 5G from simply using the infrastructure in their day-to-day lives.

INTERNET of THINGS

When Will Malaysia Get 5G?

In November 2019, Celcom Axiata and Maxis signed a joint agreement that states they will simultaneously provide a 5G network infrastructure to Malaysia. In July, Celcom had debuted a live 5G test cluster, and its rival, DiGi.com created an OpenLab in 5G in Cyberjaya. Celcom is introducing 5G early in 2020, and Maxis is aiming for rolling out 5G during the latter half of 2020.

To boost 5G technology, the Malaysian Government is offering a RM50 million grant to companies that develop the 5G infrastructure. It is also offering matching grants up to RM25 million for pilot projects working with 5G and fibre optics for the infrastructure.

5G Will Boost the Malaysian Economy

One of the upsides of introducing 5G is that it will boost the economy. According to a study by Cisco, by 2025, Malaysian telecoms stand to make RM3.76 billion in profits just by switching to 5G. This will have a great economic impact on the country as more people switch to 5G. Are you excited to have 5G technology in the palm of your hand?

Fascinating History in Malaysia: Kedah

Situated in Northwest Malaysia, Kedah is a lush land full of waterfalls, exquisite beaches, verdant forests, and unique geography. It's also an island paradise for bird and butterfly watchers as well as providing a habitat for exotic wildlife species such as flying monkeys, squirrels, snakes, foxes, and monitor lizards. Kedah also offers a rich cultural experience that's steeped in history. Following are just five of Kedah's main attractions that you should check out.

Langkawi

The Langkawi archipelago consists of 99 islands, many of which are sparsely populated with little tourist trade, while others feature luxury amenities designed to provide visitors with a comfortable and relaxing travel experience. The south-eastern islands are preferred by tourists because of its white sand beaches, nightlife, spectacular sunsets, and lush forested areas. You'll find everything from vibrant nightclub scenes to secluded beaches here that are ideal for wildlife viewing.

Bujang Valley

A must-see destination for history and archaeology buffs, the Bujang Valley is Malaysia's richest archaeological region. You'll see prehistoric temples, a brick monument dating back to AD 110 that is the oldest remaining manmade structure in Southeast Asia, and relics that include Hindu icons, ceramic pottery, personal ornaments, metal tools, stone tablets, and other artefacts of the ancient civilisation that flourished there.

Paddy Museum

Opened in 2004 on land owned by the Malaysian Agricultural Development Authority, the Paddy Museum celebrates rice paddies and their contribution to Malaysia's culture. The three-story structure features impressive murals created by 60 different talented painters from North Korea, and the exterior of the building is designed to look like bushels of rice paddies. Exhibits include tools used in rice production, and the museum is open from 9 am until 5 pm. The museum's top floor features a revolving platform with cinema seats where guests enjoy a true-to-life panorama of artist renderings of rice paddies. Rice is the most cultivated crop on the planet.

Tun Mahathir Birthplace

Founded in 1735, Alor Setar is best known as the birthplace of two-time Malaysian Prime Minister Tun Mahathir. Mahathir's political career has spanned more than 70 years, making him the oldest serving political leader on Earth. Alor Setar is situated along the historical travel route from Malaysia to Thailand and steeped in Southeast Asian history. The city features abundant galleries and museums, Hindu temples, Moorish mosques, and historic landmarks such as Nobat Tower and the two-story home in which Tun Mahathir was born. The structure is now a free museum and features relics from the Prime Minister's life.

Makam Mahsuri

Makam Mahsuri is the resting place of Mahsuri, a young maiden who was wrongfully accused of adultery and sentenced to death. Before she died for a sin she hadn't committed, she put a curse on the island that resulted in bad luck for seven generations. In the year 2000, a seventh-generation member of Mahsuri's family returned to the island from Thailand, and the region experienced an economic upturn, signalling that the curse had finally run its course. Mahsuri's tomb is a must-see for all visitors to Malaysia.

How many of these places have you been to? Make it a point to visit all of them!

New & Returning Games in the Summer Olympics 2020: Karate

Malaysians are incredibly excited for the upcoming 2020 Summer Olympics in Tokyo, Japan. That's because for the first time in the history of the Summer Olympics, which date back to 1896, karate will be included as an official Olympic sport. Malaysians are hoping to bring home at least one karate medal from the 2020 Summer Olympics. In addition to being a world-renowned sport, karate is also known as a great activity for improving physical health, strength, agility and fitness.

History of Karate

Most countries in Asia developed their own forms of martial arts, but Okinawan Karate is perhaps the most famous worldwide. While the ancient origins of karate are disputed, most agree that the modern form was developed in the 18th century in Japan. Malaysia's own indigenous martial art is known as Silat, which is believed to date back more than 2,000 years and is widely considered to be the "deadliest" martial art form in the world.

Malaysian karate exponents travelled to Japan to train with karate masters in the 1950s, after World War II. They brought the sport back to Malaysia, where there is an incredibly diverse array of karate styles and schools in use today.

Colour of Karate Belts in Sequence

People who practice karate are assigned different coloured belts to signify their mastery of techniques, skills and "katas" – routines of karate styles strung together in a performance. New students in most karate styles are assigned a white belt. From there, they will progress to yellow belts, followed by orange, blue, green, brown and ultimately, the black belt.

Karate Belts at the 2020 Olympics

At the 2020 Summer Olympics, viewers will only see two belt colours on display: blue and red. The participants will compete in Olympic katas with two competitors at a time. The other Olympic event is the "kumite," in which two participants engage in sport fighting; the winner will be the contestant who scores more strikes against their opponent in three-minute rounds. In both the Olympic katas and kumite, each participant will be assigned a blue or red belt at random.

Why Is Karate Especially Good for Women?

Karate is a spectacular sport for women because it relies so heavily on skill to overcome brute force. If a woman is attacked, a male aggressor is likely to overpower her due to his greater size and strength. But with training in karate, a woman has a much better chance of fighting off and escaping an attacker. In addition to self-defence, karate is great for developing self-confidence and fitness. One area that women especially excel at in karate is in the kata routines, the routines which are considered the most difficult aspect of karate to learn.

Karate Is Good for the Whole Family

Most karate schools today welcome students of all ages, from small children to grandparents. Everyone can benefit from the fitness and defence techniques that this ancient sport offers. This is why we offer karate classes as an option at many of our Clubs. Sign up the whole family for a karate class today!

What's Trending: Boba Tea – When Is Too Much?

Boba Tea. Everyone loves to drink this popular tea, but can you drink too much of it?

The drink has been growing in popularity since the 1980s, and now more than 50 different brands of boba tea can be found in cafes throughout Malaysia. From black, green, oolong and even white tea, the variants of this drink have been growing.

There are two main categories of boba tea, aka bubble tea: without milk and with milk. Tapioca pearls are common, although some bubble teas contain popping spheres filled with fruit juices. No matter what type of flavours you prefer, you can probably find a boba tea that you love.

The price of boba tea can get expensive, however. In some places, the cost of a boba tea can be as much as you would pay for an entire meal. Like anything that becomes popular, price is driven by the demand for this delicious tea. Cafes work hard to provide quality boba tea, and with so many options to choose from, customers are willing to pay a high price for this delicious drink.

Out of the 50 or more brands that are available in Malaysia, there are a few brands that stand out above the rest. KOI is one of the more successful brands out there, and the business continues to grow. They opened their first store in 2017, and they take pride in using only natural ingredients when making their bubble pearls. Their goal is to provide freshly brewed teas that are brewed to perfection.

Tealive is run by Bryan Loo, a popular businessman in Malaysia that also owns Gindaco and Croissant Taiyaki. They have some fun with a limited-edition menu where they offer unique drinks for a short time, but they also have a signature brown sugar pearl milk tea that customers love.

The Alley Malaysia is another boba tea favourite in the country. The Alley makes their own sugar cane syrup and their own tapioca pearls using the best ingredients possible. The most popular drink on their menu is the brown sugar deerioca milk, which includes fresh milk, their homemade sugar cane syrup and the delicious chewy tapioca pearls. Although there was recent news about a person who loves boba tea having an X-ray where their lungs and stomach were filled with boba and causing constipation, this story sounds dubious. It is unlikely that drinking too much boba tea is going to cause constipation, the reason the consumer purportedly went to the hospital in the first place.

Boba that contains sugar shouldn't be used for hydration purposes, as anything that contains sugar isn't going to be beneficial to your health in large quantities. Boba tea is unlikely to cause constipation or an intestinal blockage, as the amount of consumption this would require is extreme.

Boba is a great drink, and can be enjoyed frequently as a favourite drink without fear.

Golf is a low-impact sport. As a result, joints are not subject to the stresses and strains of more energetic activities like tennis and running, which can lead to long-term joint damage. This makes golf an ideal activity for older players, who, perhaps unable to throw rugby balls around as they did in their younger years, can still enjoy this wonderful sporting activity.
